Tyler's "Munis" software will allow all City departments to operate efficiently with automation and workflows integrated into the software. The Munis software also provides online services ranging from online permits and licensure, to online payments, i.e., business taxes, property taxes, parking tickets. The only online capabilities of the City's current system is to receive property tax payments.

A one-time implementation fee of $377,390 will finance the software's implementation, including the conversion from multiple software systems currently used and staff training for the new system. The first year cost including maintenance and one-time conversion costs and related expenses is $544,062. RECOMMENDATION: Approve Ordinance No. 4451 on second consideration.

INFORMATION: During development of the 2021 strategic plan, the City Council unanimously approved reestablishing a sanitary sewer impact fee. This objective was included in the final version of the 2021 strategic plan. The City of Columbia engaged Duncan and Associates to conduct a sewer impact fee study in 2021 to identify the impact of new sewer connections as well as propose a dollar amount per meter size. The fee study included a methodology providing the basis for the fee adopted via Ordinance No. 4369 in November 2021. A revised fee study was completed in October 2022 following private sector inquiries in larger water meter sizes than are provided for in the existing study.

Additionally, water meters used by Columbia Power and Water Systems have been updated and revised in the study. The new meter sizes and changes in meter types are reflected in Ordinance No. 4451. In addition to the revised fee amounts, Ordinance No. 4451 also reestablishes that impact fee proceeds shall be used to finance the new sanitary sewer (wastewater) treatment plant currently in design.

This item is being resubmitted because in the previous submission the 6-inch meter size was incorrectly listed as 5-inch.
